

FRIDAY 17th JUNE AT 1:00 PM
online via AuctionPlus

Dear Simmental Members,

Welcome, to the 2022 Simmental National Sale to be held on Friday 17th June 2022 @ 1:00pm, using the online platform via AuctionsPlus. This year some changes have been regulated to form a stand-alone Simmental helmsman style sale, allowing you to place bids of your choice at any time during the sale period. An exciting move ahead for the Simmental Breed!

The Society Organising Committee envisage the sale to be an annual event backing the smaller ASBA stud members in selling and promoting elite Simmental cattle, along with our more individualised studs that have expanded over the years. This of course is in conjunction with our 50th year of Simmentals in Australia 2022 celebrations.

We have amended some of the conditions of entries, so please take the time to read them thoroughly prior to entering and familiarise yourselves with the checklist dates.

The Society is for the advancement and development of the breed and we encourage all vendors to market and advertise their cattle, accordingly. The Society will endeavor to promote your product for the Australian beef industry on their website, Facebook pages including State Branches along with AuctionsPlus.

On behalf of the sale committee, if you have any queries, please feel free to email them through and we hope you all have a successful 2022 year ahead. The sale will surely have something for everyone! Email: office@simmental.com.au

Regards,
The 2022 Simmental National Sale Committee

ENTITLEMENTS:

Vendors from previous years will remain uncapped with entry numbers, unless they fall below the average price, then the following year the new rules will apply. New vendors to the sale will be capped at a starting number of 3 bulls and 3 females per full membership. However, moving forward after this point in time, vendors will be permitted to submit more entries per membership if they sell above the average.

For example:

Case One: if the total bull sale average is $9500 and this year you sell one bull for $7000, one for $8000 and another for $5000 for your 3 bulls – your average therefore is $6666 – this vendor will only be permitted to sell two bulls the following year.

Case Two: if the total bull sale average is $12900 and you sell one bull for $14000, one for $12000 and another for $22000 and entered 3 bulls – your average therefore is $16000 – this vendor will be permitted to sell four bulls the following year.

Case Three: if the total bull sale average is $9400 and you sell one bull for $8000, one for $12000, pass in two bulls with an entry of 4 bulls, your average price will be seen as $5000. Therefore, your entries the following year will be reduced to 3 bulls because you sold under the average price.

The above entitlement will be applied to both bulls and females. This sale performance criteria entitlement strategy has been implemented to discourage unwarranted reserve prices and to ensure the quality of the event, moving forward. This principle ensures we reward those who produce/offer quality animals which meet market demand.
